When Mary in doubt that Easter dawn
 Believes her Lord among the dead,
 She weeps her shuddering grief against
 The stubborn stone in the garden and there--
 A white lily blows, blows,
 A white lily blows in the dark heart of spring!

When death with its terror comes by night
 Disquieting my solitude,
 My Christ who rose from the dead proclaims
 The empty grave in the garden and then--
 A white lily blows, blows,
 A white lily blows in the dark heart of spring!
